HARDWARE IMPLEMENTATION OF AN N-WAY DYNAMIC LINKED LIST

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A hardware-implemented N-way dynamic link list is disclosed. The linked list memory structure comprises two basic parts for each stored location (entry) - a data element and pointer to the next element. Separate memory components provide a data organization that efficiently accesses any of N queues.

60021944 v1